

December 21, 1922

Mr. Theo. Gegoux,
Aurora, Oregon.

Dear Mr. Gegoux:

For more than two months I have tried to arrang my affairs here in order to make you a visit, but each time something unexpected interfered that demanded my personal attention and compelled me to put off my intended visit to a more convenient season; and at this time I cannot see my way clear to see you very soon.

I have not sold any more portraits, but have endeavored to do so as opportunity offered. I ~~think~~ think two ought to be sold within a short time, as two persons have been written to suggesting their attention with a request that they call and see the portraits.

You will find twenty dollars enclosed, and as soon as possible after the first seven or eight days of next month, I will hunt up your account and will see how we stand,

You remember when you were here during the summer with your son that you asked how the expense was for taking care of your portraits. My reply was that need not bother you, as that would be a very insignificant sum.

I wish you a ~~Merry~~ "Merry Christmas."

Yours truly,